Monessen Pays Tribute To Local Candidates

Monessen paid a fitting tribute to her home candidates last evening when a monster automobile parade formed and traversed the main streets of the city and surrounding territory. Over thirty cars were in line and they made a pretty appearance, covered with large red and white signs boosting for the Monessen men who seek nomination at the election today.

The parade formed on Donner avenue between Fifth and Seventh streets and shortly before 8 o'clock, headed by the Louhi band and the three candidates, Jesse Hancock, Jesse Wall and J. I. Smith, the autos started on their tour. To the strains of music of the band and with horns tooting and red fire burning, the cars made their way up Schoonmaker and down Donner, continuing on down the new road to Webster. Crossing over the Webster-Donora bridge, a visit was made to Donora and on the return, a visit, was made to Pricedale, North Belle Vernon and Belle Vernon. At each place the autos were stopped for a short time while the band played several selections.

Crossing the Belle Vernon bridge, the parade went through Speers and Charleroi and crossing the river again came into Monessen by the way of Wireton. It was after 10 o'clock when the parade disbanded at Sixth street.

Left For School

—Paul Smith who was graduated from the Monessen High at the conclusion of the last term, left this morning for the Susquehanna University at Selins Grove to complete the course in that institution. His many friends here wish him abundant success and especially those who were associated with him in football circles as Paul was captain of the Monesesn High school team.

Killed at Front

Word was received in Charleroi that Joseph Beigel, formerly of that town, had been killed while at the front with the Austrian army. Beigel left about four years ago for Austria-Hungary to locate in the northern section. The word which came to his brother, Adolph Beigel, at New Kensington and was written here, was that he was killed while in battle near Lemberg.

The services of the famous caterer was secured at a great expense by the local establishment and they ask the people of Monessen to pay them a visit and get a meal or lunch prepared by a chef who has pleased the best people in the larger cities. With tasty home cooked meals, the Busy Bee is maintaining its lead as a first class restaurant, catering to both ladies and gentlemen. The management will leave nothing undone towards the comfort and service of their patrons and a visit will assure you that they serve the best.

Big Auto Races

Washington, Pa., Sept. 20—All the sensations and the real sport furnished in the races on the big speedways of the country are promised spectators of the speed contests to be held in Washington on the Arden track, Saturday, October 2, especially in the free for all event of 25 miles. promoters of the race, who, also, promise that the meeting will be the classic of the year in western Pennsylvania, announce that Arthur C. Smith of Pittsburgh will likely have two racing cars entered. One will be the 90 horse power Simplex with I. P. Fetterman at the wheel. The other will be a Mercedes of 120 horse power, driven by C. E. Giddings. Geo. Gardner and his far famed "Beaver Bullet" that atracted attention from coast to coast two years ago when it finished seventh in the races at Indianapolis, is certain to be among the starers in the free-for-all. There is litle doubt but that C. W. Johnston of Uniontown, will be present with his Packard Greyhound. Another favorite the promoters will make an effort to have in the competition will be Guy Woodward of Charleroi, driving his June Bug Ford. T. C. O'Rourke and H. L. Robinson of Washington, will enter cars in the other three automobile events of the day and will drive the machines themselves. Entrants in these events from all over Western Pennsylvania are expected. The fastest time ever made on a half mile track in Western Pennsylvania is expected to result when Fetterman, Giddings, Johnston, Woodward Gardner and others get together in the free-for-all. With a speed of 50 miles possible on the curves they will easily average better than a mile a minute for the 25 miles. Every make of motorcycles will likely be represented in the races for these machines, Washington dealers announcing that they will secure special machines and drivers from the factories. C. B. McAlister and T. C. O'Rorke of Washington, attended the races at Fairmont, Saturday for the express purpose of arranging with drivers appearing there to come to Washington.

Young Lad Is Missing From Home

Friends and relatives of Kenneth Hupple, 10 year old son of John Hupple, 445 Knox avenue, are searching for the boy who disappeared Saturday afternoon. He was last seen playing with a number of boys in the vicinity of his home and some time later took one of the bicycles belonging to his companions and rode away. This was the last seen of him and no trace of the lad has been found despite the fact that word has been sent out to surrounding towns of his disappearance.

He has light hair and is rather stout for his age. He wore light gray trousers with a check in them. He also wore a white waist with a narrow blue stripe and tennis shoes. No cause is given for his sudden disappearance.

Found True Bill

The grand jury of the September term of Bucks county returned true bills on ten counts against Harvey S. Bomberger of Palmyra, Pa., who is charged with obtaining money under false pretense. Bomberger represented himself as treasurer of the Pennsylvania's State Cattlemen's Protective Association, which association it is alleged, has no existence except in Bomberger's imagination.

During the past three years he has operated throughout the state and according to his statement, has collected about $11,000. He was arrested last February by the Bucks county authorities, after having obtained $180 from ten farmers in Bedminster township.

Attorney E. S. Hershey of Harrisburg, who represents Bomberger, appeared in court and asked for a continuance of the case on the plea of Bomberger's serious illness. The continuance was granted and the case will not be called to trial until the December term.

Big Piano Contest Closed Last Night

The piano contest at the E. G. Hays piano store closed last night promptly at 9 o'clock. It was a far greater success than was anticipated by the management, and it is believed between five and six thousand people cast their vote for their favorite baby. There was no way to tell the standing of the contestants during the activity and great interest centers on who the winner will be. This evening at 8 o'clock the announcement will be made and competent judges have been selected to count the votes and the announcement will be made to the audience in front of the piano store at the Independent building. The piano will then be turned over to the winner.

This evening's exercises terminates the contest part of the program only. The sale will continue for a period of ten days more, during which time the people of this vicinity will be offered one of the best selections of high grade pianos and player pianos ever on display here. The sale will be in charge of C. H. Wilt, head salesman for the E. G. Hays company and he will be pleased to welcome his many friends to the salesroom whether they want to buy or not.

DR. A. D. MILLER WILL WIN OUT

Popular Physician of Manor, Regarded as a sure Winner for County Treasurer

The Morning Review of Greensburg published the following about Dr. Miller on Saturday:

"Dr. A. D. Miller of Manor, has met with wonderful success in his campaign for the Republican nomination for county treasurer and is considered a winner. He has always been a friend of labor and has a host of friends among the poor. He is a fine man and deserves the support of every man in his party. He is clear cut and thoroughly reliable and will be faithful to the important trust. With county offices filled with such men as he, the cries against political fakirs will cease. Give him your support." adv 1t fp

Battle Of Ballots Now On In Full Force

One of the greatest primary elections ever held in Westmoreland county is closing today. In the great majority of cases no better candidates were ever offered to the voters, and the contest on the part of the candidates themselves has been a dignified one, and such as would commend the individual manhood of every man seeking a place on the ticket.

Of course the contest has not been without the slanderous circular issued in the interest of certain indivuals, making mudslinging attacks upon men because of their religious and fraternal affiliations, but thanks to an intelligent people, the days of the slanderer in politics is no more, and the circular falls upon unfertile soil.

The campaign aside from this, has been clean, interesting and dignified all the way through. Candidates among themselves have been friendly and have not taken any unfair advantage of each other, and when the ballot boxes close this evening and the winners are announced, they can feel that their success was due entirely to their untiring efforts and their vigilance for more than two long months. Those who are defeated, and they will be in the majority, can retire for the present feeling that they put in their best licks, but the voters decreed that for the present they should remain at home.

There is one satisfaction left to the voters no differnece who wins on either of the parties, and that is that those nominated can be supported in the fall without evasion of mind, for the vote polled today will determine that they are the choice of a majority of the electors.

Monessen has shown her hand in this contest as never before. With three candidiates in the field,, we expect to poll far the largest vote in the history of the town, and it will be largely in favor of the home candidates. This gives them a good lead and surely success will come to us this time. It is estimated that from fifteen to eighteen hundred votes will be polled in the five precincts.

While there is some contest on locally for municipal offices, there is no great fight on for any of the offices and municipal affairs are rather quiet. All of the candidates for county offices are home today working in their respective precincts with the hope of swelling the vote.

Seem to Have the Goods

The Westmoreland water company is getting its share of publiciity through the suit entered by its consumers for a reduction of rates. The hearings so far have demonstrated beyond a doubt that the propery of the company is valued entirely too high and in this way the company seeks to build up enormous fortunes at the expense of the consumers.

Water is essential to life. People must have it and many are not able to pay grafting prices for a commodity that is necessary to life. It is high time we are getting some law that will take care of these grafting corporations.

When the monied interests control the coal, water, gas, timber and everything else that we depend upon for life, it is time to enact laws that will safeguard the interests of the people. Testimony showed that the Westmoreland water company bought water for eight cents a thousand gallons and sold it for sixty cents per thousand. It was proven by expert witnesses that it would be possible to make a profit at twelve cents per thousand gallons. If the Westmoreland water company doesn't get big profits, what would you call big profits?

When the Tri-Cities water company gets before the public service commission there will be a better chance to reveal the hidden secrets of the concern than at the hearing to prevent the merger. That this company has entered into this merger to prevent the borough from taking over the plant and to furnish an excuse for doubling the rates is generally known by local consumers. As soon as the Westmoreland suit is over, it is likely that the borough will proceed againt the Tri-Cities water company. The committee attending the hearings will make a report at the conclusion of the testamony.

Some Consistency

A property owner informed us a few days ago that he was assessed $500 extra on his house because he improved it to that extent. Another informs us that because he painted his house the assessment was raised $300.

We have reaons to believe this is true. But it's a pity 'tis true. People should be encouraged to improve their property rather than be penalized.

If we were to place a premium on property for improvements and lower the assessment when a man paints his place it would be more encouragement. A man dislikes to go in debt to improve and to have the assessor come along and soak him for his enterprise.

The fact that a man paints his house is no reason for raising his assessment. It does not add to the income of a property to have a fresh coat of paint smeared on. Another example of poor judgment on the part of an assessor was where a widow woman's home was raised $600 just after her husband died. Her income was cut off and there was a heavy mortgage on the home and she had no way to pay the taxes and no husband to attend an appeal or fight the assessor, and so it was safe to raise the valuation of her property.

What does the average man who has brains think of such assessments? We are taught by the good book to be charitable toward the widows and orphans, but this assessor who claims to be a great Christian failed to carry out the divine teachings.

Some people grumble about their assessments, but most people are satisfied with a square deal. But none of the above illustrations look like a square deal to us and we are ready to fight such injustice.

"Free and Open Primary"

"It is not the pleasure of either the Tribune or the Press weekly to meddle in primary contests. Both papers have exposed official delinquencies and official inefficiencies. Both papers have insisted upon free and open primaries so that the voters in a deliberate way may select the party candidates."—Greensburg Tribune.

If ever a lie was uttered from a newspaper sanctum, Bob's utterances fills the bill to a "t." The Tribune is worse than the slanderous circular that has branded candidates unfit and it has hounded them longer and harder. It is but to laugh when the Tribune raises its voice in defense of a candidate. The Tribune never defends a candidate unless it smells some printing some place. Its favorites are looked upon with a degree of suspicion, and not being satisfied with bulldozing candidates for county offices, it insists on getting into the fight for judge. The rantings of the Tribune about "the dignity of the court and the majesty of the law" are taken by the rank and file of voters with a great big grain of salt.

History has contributed to separate the two masses of Slavs. The Mongol yoke for two centuries introduced Asiatic customs among the Russian Slavs. The Turkish yoke for many centuries and down to our own times influenced the character and customs of the Bulgars and Serbs. Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Monessen residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

Mrs. . Koerner, 119 Knox avenue, Monesen, says: "I had a bad fall which injured my back. I suffered from constant pains across my loins and in the morning I was always worse. If I stooped over, a sharp pain caught me and I couldn't straighten. The secretions from my kidneys were unnatural and caused me annoyance. I didn't rest well and rheumatic pains made it hard for me to get about. I was often so lame that I had to sit on cushions and I had puffy sacks beneath my eyes. I doctored and tried different medicines, but got no relief. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the irsch Drug Co. drove most of the trouble away. I take this medicine off and on as a kidney tonic and it keeps me in good health."

GOVERNORS PLACE O. K. ON SUFFRAGE

Issue is Heartily Endorsed at Conference of State Executives

URGE ITS ADOPTION HERE

Chiefs From States Where Women Vote Testify to the Benefits of Equal Franchise and Decry Its Opponents

At the recent conference of governors held in Boston, woman suffrage came in for almost as much attention as the regular business for which the conference had assembled. The issue was heartily endorsed by the governors and especially by those from the suffrage States.

Eight of the twenty-nine governors and ex-governors present were from the States where women vote and all of these men were warm in their praise of the way in which the women of their States have exercised their franchise rights.

"I can see as much sense in questioning the right of women to the ballot as in asking if the Lord's Prayer is a good thing," said Alva Adams, who was twice governor of Colorado. George N. Paulson, the present governor of Colorado, also ridiculed the antis' contention that woman suffrage works harm, declaring that the exercise of the ballot by the women of his State has proven to be a "political safety valve" on a number of occasions. He added that the charge that women are too emotional to vote right on questions of grave importance was ridiculous and said that Colorado's experience has been that women are capable of rendering calmer judgment than men when big issues arise.

"Neglect their homes? Of course not;" said former Governor Carey of Wyoming, the first State to enfranchise women. "Why should they? Having the vote helps them to care for the home as it gives them a voice in the legislation that directly concerns all the questions that affect the home."

Women's Influence Good.

William Spry, governor of Utah, was equally emphatic in stating that Votes for Women was a success. "Women have voted in Utah since Statehood was granted in 1896, and have always exerted an influence for safe-guarding both the home and the State," he said.

Governor Hunt of Arizona said that even the antis in his State were now willing to admit that none of the evils predicted by opponents of suffrage have appeared.

Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas said:

"Kansas gave her women school suffrage and liked it. After which she gave them municipal suffrage and liked it better. In 1912 she gave them full suffrage and liked it best. Suffrage in Kansas has broadened woman's views of social life. It has centered her thoughts on home and its needs and has given a new and beneficial influence in the life of the State. It has in no way detracted from her womanliness or her character, but has strengthened both. Kansas will never go back to a rule of all the people by a part of them."

The question as to whether women really used the ballot after it was granted them, won a laugh from Governor Dunne of Illinois. "Look at the way they voted in Chicago," he said. "More than a quarter of a million of them turned out at the last mayoralty election there."

Suffrage States Wealthy.

The high per capita wealth of the suffrage State was Governor Moses Alexander's answer to the suggestion that suffrage might have a bad effect on public finances.

"The per capita wealth of all the suffrage States," he said, "is above the average of those in which the women do not vote."

"Woman suffrage is a distinct asset to the State of Washington," said Governor Earnest Lister. "No one, except perhaps someone disgruntled on account of its having interfered with some pet scheme, has ever even suggested that Washington was not better for it."

All of the governors from the suffrage States agreed that the men of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts would make no mistake if they approved the suffrage amendments at the polls on election day.

FORMER GOVERNOR STONE FAVORS WOMAN SUFFRAGE; WILL VOTE "YES"

Add to the list of the "Big Men" of Pennsylvania who favor equal rights for women, the name of Governor William A. Stone. In a recent interview, this lawyer, soldier, statesman, sportsman and all around "man's man" said:

"I know of no good reason why women should not be permitted to vote, except the present law. I am going to vote to change that law.

"If I should vote against woman suffrage I would not be displaying that gallantry and respect for the sex which my mother taught me to practice.

"Voting is no more masculine than feminine. Voting is not degrading except as the vote degrades it. Women are not 'too refined' to vote. Their voting would bring the ballot to a higher state of refinement, and it surely needs it."

Novel Proposal.

"Have you ever been engaged to be married before?" asked the young man.

"Yes; six times," replied the sweet young thing.

"Well, if your hand is not working just now I'd like to ask for it."—Yonkers Statesman.

Baby Army Officers.

It used to be the custom in England to buy commissions in the army for infants, and then they would be promoted as vacancies occurred. In this way a boy would have high rank when he was old enough to become a real soldier.

Argument Spoiled.

The Psychology of Practice.

The question of short versus long periods of practice in training the human muscles for any particular kind of work is obviously one having far-reaching application. Some interesting experiments on this subject have been carried out by Dr. K. S. Lashley of Johns Hopkins university. Acquisition of skill in archery was selected as the subject of observation. Twenty untrained persons were divided into three groups. One group shot five arrows with the English longbow per day; another twenty shots per day and the third forty shots. The result showed conclusively that the group shooting only five times a day improved in accuracy with less expenditure of time in practice than was required by either of the other groups for the same amount of improvement. A report on the experiments says: "The relatively greater efficiency of short periods of practice continuing for many days is in accordance with the results of the study of animals and of speech habits in man and indicates that in training to muscular feats, in both animals and men, the length of practice periods required is usually too great for maximum efficiency."—Philadelphia Record

The City of Pola.

Since the Austrians made the city of Pola their chief base in 1848 they have accomplished wonders there. It is claimed that with the assistance of submarines and aircraft Pola is virtually impregnable. Its commodious harbor, almost land locked, has been enlarged so that it easily contains the entire Austrian fleet. It is divided into two basins by a chain of small islands. The entrance is strongly defended, and an extensive system of fortifications on the hills inclosing the harbor insures complete protection. There is a good roadstead in the large channel of Fasana, which separates the mainland from the Brioniun islands. The marine arsenal of Pola is a vast establishment with all the requisites for a large fleet. Artillery laboratories and powder magazines are situated on the north shore, and behind the arsenal is San Policarpo, with huge barracks and hospitals.—Argonaut.

The Cheapest Paper.

London used to possess the cheapest journal ever published. It was called the Six-a Penny, or, Penny a Week Town and Country Daily Newspaper, and subscribers of a penny weekly had the paper delivered to them every day, while single copies were a farthing.

Circus Day In Charleroi Tomorrow

That dear old institution, old, yet ever new, the circus—Barnum and Bailey's—comes to Charleroi tomorrow with a real circus—the circus of our boyhood and the meadow lot, the circus with red wagons and an army of clowns, and the women in fluffy skirts who ride at breakneck speed while the ringmaster pops the whip and tumblers fly through the air.

"Boys" who can still hark back to the old-time stunt with the water pail, and "girls" who in other days clung to their mothers in awe while bespangled performers flirted with death, can romp to the show grounds tomorrow and see the latest and best development of the circus idea of entertainment as carried out by this oldest and largest of circuses.

Ther are circuses and circuses, but ther is only one Barnum and Bailey's. It has been self styled "the greatest show on earth," and this year more than ever, it is confidently asserted, lives up and beyond its trade-marked title more generously than ever before. Today the circus is exhibiting in Connelssville and long before the breakfast hour tomorrow the first of the four long trains is due to arrive in Charleroi. There will be but few sleepy heads among the youngsters. Kids that ordinarily kick upon getting up at a reasonable hour to do the morning chores, will sleep with one eye open tonight and be on hand at the railrad yards early in the morning.

Ever see a circus unload? Some years ago when the Barnum show was touring Germany, Prince Bismark watched it detrain. Then he said to the Kaiser: "Hoch, Willie, I thought the German army had some discipline, but these Johnnies can give us cards, spades and big casino and then put the pot without dealing from the bottom. Hadn't you better hire the boss and let him try to put a little system into the Imperial cohorts?"

The first thing on the circus day program will be the parade at 10 o'clock in the morning and it is promised to be a "whopper." As a banisher of melancholia, the circus people say it will be superior to any liver pill.

Every stitch of the wardrobe was new this spring and there will be new features. Almost everything of any standing in the zoological line will be seen, either openly displayed or carefully concealed in gilded cages. Over a score of elephants will plod along, and there will be six bands of music in the two mile long pageant of glittering splendor.

But it is under the "big top" at 2 and 8 o'clock p. m. that this thousand-sided miracle of the amusement world promise to make all sit up and take notice, for this circus goes on improving each year and burning up all the laudatory adjectives, until all the superlatives are exhausted. This season the circus is almost entirely new and commences with a gorgeous pageant descriptive of Lalla Rookh's departure from Delhi, enlisting the services of over 1,000 people, and a wealth of colorful wardrobe and trappings.

Following the glittering pageant will come the rapid and diverting succession of arenic acts given in three rings, four stages and the huge track. The elephants come first—the war elephants—who portray a mimic battlefield scene and have a whole bagful of new tricks. Lupeta Perea, who in her early childhood, shocked the natives of Mexico City with her love for the topmost bronches of the tallest trees, will thrill by her exploits upon the flying trapeze, shooting like a comet through space at the very top of the tent.

There will be innumerable aerial, acrobatic and equilibristic numbers and all presented by experts. Over two score clowns will furnish fun in hugs chunks and for over two hours there will be incessant activity and surprises. The menagerie will be large and varied and the entire circus touches a highwater mark of superlative newness and excellence never before even remotely approached.

Tickes may be bought throughout the day at Piper's drug store at Charleroi at exactly the same prices charged upon the grounds.

"WHO COMES HERE?"

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Halt! Who comes here?"

"Friends, with the countersign."

"Advance one and give the countersign."

It was the relief going the rounds to change the pickets, and I was dropped out at post No. 7. We had fought Lee all day long on the strangest battlefield of the whole war—in the Wilderness. From right to left flank, from front to rear, we were hemmed in by forest and thicket. There were swamps in which lizards and serpents lurked, thickets in which the coy whippoorwill built its nest, dense spots of forest which seemed never to have echoed the ring of the woodman's ax.

Post No. 7 was under a large tree on the edge of a thicket. It was a lonely place, well away from the camps, the dead and the dying, but I was glad to be alone. I had been nearly an hour on the post without anything happening to alarm me, when I heard a person moving in the thicket across the open strip.

Rustle, rustle! Step, step! It was a cautious movement. Whoever it was hoped to reach me without discovery, but there were dead leaves underfoot, and the thicket was dense. A hare could not have moved without betraying its presence.

"Who comes here?"

There is silence for fifteen seconds, and then a woman's voice answers:

"I can't find the place! It's so dark I can't find the place!"

Aye, it was a woman's voice, and it had a sob in it, too—a woman there in the darkness between the hostile lines with powder smoke still in the air, with stray bullets darting through the thickets with a whiz as of some great insect stirred to anger.

"Who comes here?"

"I wish it wasn't so dark! I am so tired!"

And then she comes across the open strip toward me, making no stop, never hesitating, walking straight up to me, as if she could see as well by night as in the sunshine of day.

"I can't find the place!" she sobbed as she came to a stop within arm's length.

"Good God, woman, what are you doing here?" I gasped, almost terrified at her presence.

"See! See!" she replied, holding a bundle out toward me. "One time I saw a beautiful spot in the woods and said to myself that if he died I would bury him there, but I can't find it—I can't find it!"

"What is it, woman? What have you got there?"

"See! See! Don't be afraid. He's dead. He can't speak or move. Take him!"

She put a bundle into my arms, and I cried out and let my musket fall. It was the body of a baby about a year and a half old. Dead? Yes—dead from a cruel bullet which had pierced its little body and left a great wound, which looked horrible to me in the dim light; dead and cold and bathed in its own blood—dead for hours! And when I reached out and touched the shawl or wrap worn by the mother my fingers burned at the feet of blood!

"Was it your baby? Did you live in the cabin beyond the thicket?" I asked, still holding the little corpse.

"He was so happy!" she said as she patted the little bare head with a motherly hand. "And I was so happy too! He won't ever laugh and crow again, will he? I've got to find that beautiful place and bury him, haven't I? And you'll help me? Yes; I know you will, for you don't swear and curse at me."

She had lost her mind. Think of it—an insane mother, wandering over a bloody battlefield with her dead child in her arms! She had but one idea—to bury it in a dell which she had once visited and remarked its beauty, a dell in which Federal and Confederate were doubtless then burying their own dead.

I knew not what to do. I could not leave my post, and I did not want her to go wandering farther. I was trying to soothe and quiet the woman when she suddenly cried out:

"Ah, it's not so dark now, and I can find the place! I'll go on ahead and dig the grave, and you follow on with the baby. Poor baby! He won't know that he is buried, will he? I can find the place, and you"—

"Come back! Come back!" I called to her as she fled away in the darkness, but she was 200 feet away as she answered me:

"I'll find the place! Poor, poor baby!"

And when the relief came I told the story and pointed to the bundle resting on the ground beside me.

"God pity her!" whispered the sergeant as he lifted his cap.

"God pity her!" echoed all the others as they stood uncovered around the poor little corpse.

Time meant human lives that night. Grant was moving by the flank. Lee was moving by the flank to match him. The morrow was to witness more slaughter—make thousands of other widows and orphans.

"Dig here!" said the sergeant, and with our bayonets we scooped out a shallow grave in scarcely more than a minute's time.

"Carefully now! Poor little thing! Now fill in. That will do. God knows where it lies! Fall in! Forward, march!"

And yet men write of the glory of war!

Doctor Injured

Four automobiles skidded over the embankment near what is known as the iron bridges on the Bentleyville road near Coopers Mills Saturday night after the heavy rain. One of the automobiles was driven by Dr. F. C. Stahlman of Charleroi. He was caught under his car.

He was extricated after a time from his position, considerably bruised, but othewrise unhurt. The machines had to be dragged from their place Sunday morning. Dr. Stahlman was the only one injured in the four accidents. The drivers of the other three cars are unknown.

It is interesting to note that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful remedy for female ills we have, was originally prepared for home use from one of these recipes. Its fame has now spread from shore to shore, and thousands of American women now well and strong claim they owe their health and happiness to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription.
